Important Arrest of CounterOpters in Claveland—An Aged Murderer and a Eith-tric Reputable Physician among Thom-Discovery of Bogus Coin and Dies.

Discovery of Bogus Cots and Dies.
At Burton, in Gesaugs County, on Friday last, says. Friday evening's Cleveland Flam Dealer, Mr. Hackett, assisted by Lambert White and Marshal Johnson of this city, arrested H. R. Whitcomb, Samuel B. Whitcomb, Jesse Boarn and Josish Dixon. Only some $300 in base metal was found in their possession, but there is no doubt that they have been ringleaders in the gang, and have done much toward flooding the West with worthless money.

been ringleaders in the gang, and have done much toward flooding the West with worthless money.

There is a strange listory connected with Jesse Boorn, one of the men arrested at Burton. Some forty years ago a cold-blooded murder was perpetrated in the State of Vermont. The murdered man was a brother-inlaw of Boorn, named Colley, and circumstances pointed to Boorn and his brother as the guilty parties. They were tried, convicted, and sentenced to be hung.

The execution day came, and large crowds poured into the village to see the murderars swing. They ascended the scaffold, and the mose was placed around their necks, when the supposed dead man appeared in the erowd! The Boorns were set free, just as they reached death's door, and immediately sled the State. Jesse Boorn, now nearly seventy years old, confessed to Mr. Hackett, at Burton, that he and his brother did murder Cobley, the person who appeared before the gallows being a main from New Jersey, who bore a striking resemblance to the deceased, and who was expressly hired to play the villainous part. The affair created a great excitement at the time throughout New England, and lawyers retained for the defense in desperate murder cases have, ever since quoted the Boorn case for the benefit of

New England, and lawyers retained for the defense in desperate murder cases have eyer since quoted the Boorn case for the benefit of their clients.

It is believed—indeed Boorn confessed as much—that the hardened wretch purposed to atill further steep his hands in blood by murdering a Mr. Doolittle, of Burton, who has money which the gaing have long justed for.

The parties who were arrested at Burton for.

The parties who were arrested at Burton, are now in jail in this city, and will probably be tried during the present term of the United States District Court.

On last Wednesday Marshal Johnson and Mr. Hackett made another important arrest at North Washington, in Hardin County, securing the persons of Dr. E. B. Heistaud, a hitherto respectable physician, and Hiram Hartzel. These parties are charged with manufacturing bogus coin, and were brought to the city and lodged in jail.

It is worthy of mention that of the numerous persons arrested for counterfeiting on the Reserve, during the past year, not one has been caught in Cleveland. They rendezvous in the country—in small, out-of-the-way places, where they outwardly maintain the utmost respectability, and, in some instances, even affect piety. One company make the coin, and another sells it, but none of them pass it. When one is arrested the efforts of the entire gang are put in use to secure his acquittal.

Activity of the Trade.

By a recent arrival from the Coast of Africa, we learn, says the Boston Traveller, that there were seven American vessels in the Congo River, June 4, trading, of course, but the names of which were not reported English cruiseen had been along fide them all, found that they were not to be boarded with impunity, and prudently hauled off, as several officers had recently been reprimanded by the Admiraty for going on board American vessels without permission. Incidentally we have been informed, that a regular fleet of vessels clear from different ports of the United States at the same time, and that distributed among them are stores and water to fit out two or three of them for slavers, and that when the coast is clear, they all combine to aid the selected vessels in receiving stores and slaves with the greatest possible dispatch. By these means, seven or eight vessels may be all engaged in the slave-trade, without having on board sufficient slave material to convict any one of them.

having on board sufficient-slave material to convict any one of them.

This system might be tormed the "mutual aid dodge." We understand that eit works successfully. It rarely happens that there is more than one critiser near a noted slave-mart, and if she should succeed in making prize, she generally leaves the place with and proceeds to St. Helena or Sierra Leone prize, she generally leaves the place with it and proceeds to St. Helena or Sierra Leone. Aware of her absence, the "mutual aid" slavers, dispatch as many of their number as possible, and generally run clear. We have also been informed, that two or three swift steam slavers were fitting out on the coast, from ports in Cuba, and that great gains were expected from them. As we have not any steam vessels of the class required for such a trade, we suppose they have been built in England, and are of iron.

If these statements are correct, the slave-trade, in the language of the markets, may be stated as "active, with an increased demand."

THE SOLE SUBPENSION OF THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCES.—The death of Mr. Gales, says the Albany (N. Y.) Journal, revives a reminiscence of the only time his paper, the National Intelligences, ever suspended publication. It was a warm and able advocate of the Madison War policy, seconding the efforts of Clay and his compeers, and so powerful was its influence that when General Ross, in command of the British troops, entered the capital after the unfortunate affair at Hadenburg, his first inquiry was not for the Capitol, the President's House, or the departments, but for the National Intelligences office, and it was the first establishment demolished causing a short cessation in its regular publication. With this exception, the Intelligences has been published regularly, for sixty years.

Singular Death from a Scratch.—Mr.

Singular Draff from a Scratch.—Mr. Bosworth Chaffee, of Seekonk, Mass., had the misfortune to scratch his arm against the wall in his cellar, on Tuesday last, but considered the injury too insignificant to require attention at the time; yet it continued to grow worse until Monday morning, when his whole arm was in a state of mortification. He was attended by skillful physicians, but medical skill was of no avail, and he died at two o'clock on Monday afternoon.

A Man Impounde his own Carris, The Hartford (Conn.) Press says that a wealthy gentleman of that city, riding out the other morning, was aroused to wrath at seeing some cattle trespossing on his meadows, and with emphatic curses sent his man to drive them to the pound. He was not at all pleased to learn, as he did soon after, that the cattle were his own.

A Great Hay-Maxing Town.—Danbury.

A Great Hat-Makine Town.—Danbury, the great hat-making town in Connecticut, has nearly $500,000, invested in the hatting business. The sales of hats there made amount to $1,500,000 yearly or about $1 a piace for the hats made. Thirteen hundred possons are employed in the work, chiefly men and bogs.

Singular Game with a Clotties-line.—A gentleman, passing homeward one night, came to a clothes-line, with a shirt on it. He immediately proposed to the line to "odd and even," to see which should have the shirt he pulled out a shilling took it odd, and won. He then went his way, the sther by a good shirt.

The Eyrsor be an Omirrate Comma.—A printer, meddling with the verdict of a coroner's jury, struck out a comma after the word "apoplexy," making it read thus "Deceased came to his death by excessive drinking, producing apoplexy in the minds of the jury."

Dr. R. P. States where the bollowing letter to the Mobile Tribune from Toulminville, Alabama:

Some time in the month of February of this year, as Mrs. Tucker was walking along the road, a large dog, which was quietly lying down, sprang up and seised her. She caught hold of him, and in the desperation of fear held him until the owner came and took him off. The dog, however, bit her hand and mangled it badly. He also bit his master when he took him off. Mrs. Tucker visited me the following day to have her hand dressed. It was very fluch cut, and also inflamed. As the testliment, Bertofore was so strong that we could not have hydrophobia in this climate, and as it was the season of the year that we would scarcely expect it any way, and as the dog was not far from his master's residence, it seemed anadvisable to use the severe means that are recommended in such cases, unless the proof was positive that the dog was mad.

After the dog returned home, he acted so strangely that the master concluded he was mad, and therefore shot him. This, however, was but surmise, how safly true, the sequel will show. Mrs. Tucket, after much suffering, as from any other inflamed wound, finally got well, and remained so until Modaday last, July 16, when she felt a little unwell: on Tuesday had some pain in the right hand and arm (the one that was bit, which traveled up, as she said, into her right side. She also felt a little feveral, and had some head ache. On Wednesday, these disagreeable feelings continuing, she found anddenly that she could not swallow water. It produced a spasmodic feeling; in a word, the effort to drink took away her breath. I saw her Wednesday evening. She was lying down on the bed, dressed and looking quite natural—skin felt pleasant, head little too hot, pulse soft and weak, but not excited, asked her how she felt, and she said she had a burning thirst for water, but could not take it.

I had some brought to her then. She began to look excited. I gave it to her, and the very sight of it coursed a spasm of al breath. In such manner did the very sight of water affect her, causing such a feeling of suffocation that the patient cried "A way with it, you will kill me." Imagine in this dry and heated weather, when there is no moisture even in the atmosphere, that, consumed by a terrible thirst, the very sight of water should produce such an effect. Can any thing be more horrible? On Wednesday night, urged by this thirst, she rushed to the bucket of water, saying, "I will have water," but on reaching it, the very sight brought on a spasm, and she would have fallen, her daughter told me, if they had not caught her.

Many valuable fruit trees were broken down, and several buildings were more or less damaged. Near the factory of C. A. & J. M. Wheelook, in the west part of the town, the tornade cut a path through the woods, three-fourths of a mile long, and a rod wide. Large trees, which for fifty years or more had successfully battled with the tempest, were broken down. One large tree, in particular, which measured four feet in diameter, was snapped off like a pipe stem. After cuttings clean path through the woods, it rushed along the fields of grain, laying it all flat and broken. It next seized upon a barn, turned along the fields of grain, laying it all flat and broken. It next seized upon a barn, turned it end for and, and replaced it upon its founda-tion, though not so skilfully as the owner desired. How far the tornado extended be-yond this point is not yet known. Probably, further reports will confirm the belief that immense damage has been done. No proper estimate can at present be made. Eye-wits-nesses promounce the appearance of the tor-nado to be wonderful and fearful, its effect was certainly wonderful.

ENTERTAISING CALCULATION.—That those maladies which originate in a disordered imagination can be cured by producing a belief that they will be, seems more ratioual, and that the proportion of disorders originating from this source, and from the influence of passion, is large, none can doubt. The following amusing estimate, said to be made by an old London physician, exhibits the origin of the different cases of disease to which he was called in the course of a year. Vauxhall, theaters, hackney coaches, and places of public worship, (that is, crowded public assembles, 1 560; indulging in wine, spirits and smoking, 1 560, indulging, 1 500, sudden changes in the atmosphere, 1,200, prevalence of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, force of imagination, 1,500, open of the north or east winds, 1,800, open of the north of

THE JEWS OF MESOPOTAMIA.—For centuries post the Jews of Mesopotamia have been in the habit of making yearly pilgrimages to the temb of Ezekiel, within some six miles of Bagdad. On arrival, some weeks ago, however, Nouri Moustapha Pasha, the new Governor of the Province, published a prohibition against the practice, alleging that the tomb was equally venerated by the Musselman, and that he intended to build over it a mosque for the special use of the Islamite pilgrims, by whom it would for the future be exclusively visited. In vain did the excluded israelites urge the prescription of centuries, the new Governor was deaf to easy argument that could be used. Thereupon the Jews dispatched a deputation to Constantinable, to carry their complaint direct to the Potto. This has been done, and a vinicial latter was dispatched to Hagdad, ordering the bigoted profibition to be at once removed.

PA Young Woman Desinable in a New Four.—A young woman who has published a volume of "poems," addresses the following these to her assectibent:

"I wanted were that nice cigar That rests between your like; For ch! I gridge the honer, of the assolar which it size."

Anormen Dunt is vier South.—A dual was fought, the other shorming, between Mesers A. I. Clark and Edmond Etagerald from Virginia, we believe, which resulted in the wounding of the latter. His injuries, however, are believed not to be serious, the ball having only penetrated his body to a limited extent. The weapons were rifles, distance forty paces. The scene of the duel was a few miles from town, in the neighboring county of Caswell, North Carolina.

Description of the Interior of Sicily. island, says:

Remarkable Marder in France.

The Court of Assizes of the Indre three days ago tried a married woman named Maingault, of La Menardiere, on the charge of murdering her husband. She is descrated from an ancient family of the Province of Berry, named Gamache, but is without fortune. She married in 1841 Maingault, who was a landed proprietor, and, as he was of weak character, he not only wasted a great portion of his fortune by her extravagance, but Ill-treated him, and was, benides, turaltheful. In 1847 she left him, and hived apart for ten years. She then returned to her husband's house, and frequently was heard to express a wish to see him dead, in order that As for the scenery, it is the finest you can imagine—a continuous succession of magnificent valleys and grand mountain slopes. In the distance we have been hitherts accompanied by the pictoresque, rugged main-chain of the Sicilian Mountains, which traverses the whole length of the island from Cape Gallo to the Straits of Messima. While we have this magnificent background to our left, with frequent glimpses of the see, we wind up hill and down hill smong cornicids as far as the eye can reach, and now shd then an olive wood. From time to time you can observe on the neck of a mountain clusters of white houses perched up among woods and gardens, for wherever there is a river near every thing lives with an exuberant life—the cactus, the aloc, the vine, the fig and almond Tant year she represented that he had be-come insane, and, as she pretended to be afreid that he would attack her, she provided cry thing lives with an exuberant life—the ctus, the aloc, the vine, the fig and almond eas, with flowers such as no hot-house car roduce, roses and oleanders in full bloom, herself with a heavy club to "kill him if he touched her." In August the man suddenly disappeared, and, in answer to questions respecting him, she at one time said that he had gone to Belgium, at another to Algiers, and at a third to Orleans. Although this was considered strange no investigation was instituted. eas considered strange no investigation was instituted.

Things continued in this state until March last, when a boy named Golland, who had been in Maingault's service, expressed the opinion that the man was not so far off as the woman said; and when called on for an explanation he related that he and his master had on the eleventh of August last, collected a quantity of building stones and lime to make repairs; that the woman had come to them and told his master to go down the well of the house for the bucket which had fallen, and had sent him (the boy) to do some job at a distance, and that on his return in an hour he found that his master bad disappeared, and that the woman was engaged in throwing stones into the well. The boy, therefore, suggested that his master had been murdered in the well by the woman casting stones on him. The well being examined, was found to be blocked up with stones and rubbish, and the whole being got out, there was found beneath the skeleton of a man, which, from articles of dress on it, was recognized as that of Maingault. The woman was lound guilty, but with extenuating circumstances, and was condemned to twenty years' hard labor. a distance, attend to their fields, did you not find now and then a little round atructure of weeds, something like an Indian wigwam, or an English bell-tent of reed, with the ground excavated as in the Crimes. With still greater astonishment you see that all these grand mountain slopes, with waving corn upon them, can not be plowed, but must be worked by manual labor. You have been accustomed to the lazy Palermian beggar, and had an idea that the Siglians in the interior were rather worse, and now you see an incredible amount of production for a small number of inhabitants.

Of course, a model farmer would toss up an incredible amount of production for a small number of inhabitants.

Of course, a model farmer would toss up his head at the imperfections, but I have rarely seen so much production with such scanty means of labor. The 241 repays it sumply. I have counted some of the ears of wheat, and found as many as ninety-seven grains in one. I begin to understand that Sicily was the granary of Rome. The Crimean was and the war in Italy had given a great impulse to the production, so that millions of ducats have found their way into the pockets of the hadlords. If Sicily was once under a good government, which would encourage instead of stifling industry und trade, as the Neapolitan has done, there would be soon to necessity to search for grain on the Danube and on the Black Sea. With reservoirs to keep what is now wasted by the torrents and artesian wells, two crops could be easily obtained in a year.

PRECEIABRYY OF THE CITY OF ADEN.—Aden, near the mouth of the Red Sea, was declared a free port in 1850. Its statistics since that time exhibit an extraordinary increase in commercial activity. In the years 1844-45, the value of its trade amounted to less than $759,000 in thirteen years it has increased eightfold, reaching in the years 1857-58 to $5,700,000. One of the most important elements in this trade is coal, Aden having been made the coal station for the steinners which ply between Suez and India, Mauritius and Australia. Next in value as an article of commerce, is coffee, which is brought by water from the Red Sea to Aden, and thence exported to India, France and America. Cotton from India is also largely imported at Aden, and is mostly sent to the interior. The trade of Aden with Africa, which a few years back amounted to nothing, reached in 1857-58 to nearly half a million of dollars. The chief African port in connection with Aden is Berbera, where a great annual fair has lately been established, continuing from October to April. The number of vessels, not including steamers, which visited the harbor of Aden in 1857-58 was 161. REMARKABLE SUICIPE IN CANADA.—A gentlemanly appearing man came to Windsor, C. W., on Friday evening, and inquired for Sarah Judson, the Pontiac woman, whose marriage to the negro, Warrener, some time since, caused such a sensation. Late that night he played chess in a saloon, and told those around him that he was a Pole. Next morning he was found dead on the Great Western Railway track, about a mile from Windsor. The top of his head was nearly all blown off, and there were marks as of blows on the face and head. A flattened bullet was found in the skull. An old pistol was found in a ditch near by. An inquest was held, but it seemed difficult to decide whether the case was that of murder or suicide. On the inquest, Mrs. Warrener (Sarah Judson), denied all knowledge of the man. table, and its effect has been very intelligibly described by him since recovery. The patient says that the effect of the other produced entire and dreamless sleep, and that the period in which be lay upon the table, after the ether took effect, was a perfect blank. His recovery, in view of the danger of the operation, was rather hoped for than expected. The limb was removed in order to remove with it a malignant tumor, and the patient prefetred death to a continuance of suffering.

A translation of Longfellow's Hyperion and Kacanagh has appeared at Brussels, with a sketch of his life, and a translation of Motley's history has appeared there likewise. The United States Marshal at Key West reports that the number of Africans landed there was 1,431, since died 247, shipped for Africa 755, remaining 30th ult. 420.

An English clergyman at Holloway, England, has been detected in preaching the aermons of Rev. Dr. Bushnell, of Hartford, from the published volumes in this country. A dry needle will float on water, if laid carefully upon it, owing to the repulsion of what scientists call "the sphere of repulsion" between the surface of the steel and the fluid. At the Smithsonian Institution at Wash

The first shipshent of wool was made from San Francisco to the United States in 1854, only amounting to 3,000 pounds. The shipments this year will exceed 3,000,000 pounds.

In Prof. Sheppard's cabinet of Amborst (Mass.) College, masses of meteoric iron may be seen, which weigh from ten to 1,000 or 1,500 pounds. There are of free negroes in Cubs, black and unlattees, from 160,000 to 180,000, all occupied in respectable industry, and having equal civil rights with the white population, and better protection.

PATE OF THE LATE EXTRICULINARY Marson.—We learn, says the Boston Traveller, that the following rough and approximate path of the meteor has been deduced by Prof.
Bond, of the Observatory of Harrard College, which may, of course, be considerably varied by other or more accurate observations.

The meteor passed over the northern part of Pennsylvanis; in a nearly easterly course, over or near the northern part of New Jersey, the south-east corner of New York and Long Island Gound, and fell into the Ocean south-east of Nantucket. It was distant about 100 miles from Boston, when bearing sault of ps. Its fillteds was about twenty miles above the sea to the north of New Bedford. Its velocity was twenty or thirty miles a second. It was seventy or eighty miles from the Baltimore steamer, whose masts "it just grazed," and yet further from the observer who "dodged it" in Waltham.

Genuine Case of Hydrophobia Horrible Sufferings and Death of a Woman. Dr. E. P. Gaines writes the following letter to the Mobile Tribune from Toulminville,

On Thursday the spasms became more frequent; the secretion of a frothy, tenacious nucus in the throat was also added to the distress, causing a constant hawking and spitting. The countenance seemed more wild and haggard; she was sensible, however, and recognized her acquaintances. She never showed any desire to hurt any one. She steadily grew weaker, and eleven o'clock Thursday night closed the sad scene.

Violent Tornade in Massachusetts.
The town of Uxbridge, Mass., was visited Saturday afternoon, by a terrible tornado, it seemed to begin in the north part of the town, near the pond of the Uxbridge Cotton fills, the water to which was raised in large volumes, whirled around, and then whirled back to its bed—theute traveling in an easterly direction, taking up flour barrels, and sending them upward like balloons. Every moveable thing was speedily thrown from its place. The shingles were stripped from one building, and scattered a long distance in the tracks of the ruthless spoiler. Many valuable fruit trees were broken down, and several buildings were more or less

The towns and villages, like eagles' nests, are perched up high, and secure from malaris, which infests all the lowlands, and from hostile attack, the approach to them through a garden. What astonishes you is to see so much cultivation and so few villages and towns—miles and miles of confields before you find an inhabited place. The insecurity forced people to herd together, and you could not understand how they can, from so great a distance, attend to their fields, did you not find now and then a little round atructure of Singular Circumstance iniConnection with an Artesian Well in South Carolina.

A singular circumstance took place not long since at the turpentine establishment of Messrs. Bradley & Lane, about three miles below Kingstree, on the road leading from that place to Georgetown. While Mr. Coleman was engaged in digging a well, and had reached the depth of twenty-six feet from the surface, he felt the stratum of earth in the bottom of the well, which was about four feet square, suddenly in motion beneath him. He was lifted, together with the earth, to the hight of about a foot, when, not being able to divine what was about to take place uext, he prudently made a heaty retreat to the tub which was attached to the windlass above, and by means of which the earth had been thus far removed! Having got into the tub, he gave the signal to be drawn up, when, to his astonishment, he saw the water swelling and boiling up from below, and rising with remarkable rapidity. He had not been drawn to the surface, and had not been standing on terra firms longer than from ten to fifteen minutes, when he saw the well completely filled to overflowing its edges. He was forced to cut a ditch from the well to a neighboring branch in order to prevent the water from covering the yard and submiorging the surrounding grounds. The water is said to be pure, cool and excellent, and has flowed with a bold stream since that thue, and is flowing in the same manner at the present time.

The Old Dominion Insurance Office will lose $1,300 by the disaster, having a risk to this amount on one consignment. The steamer was probably insured in Philadelphia. She was one of the oldest, if not the pioneer vessel of the steam line between that city and Richmond. The aggregate value of the steamer and cargo is estimated at about $70,000.—Richmond Whig. riage, as they may do it with less scandal Christ's Church.

Black, her insband on the ground that the marriage is null and void, because, when consummated, the plaintiff was an infant under the age of fourteen years. The complaint shows that plaintiff did not become fourteen years of age until the 18th of October, 1859, and that she was married on the 4th of June of that year. The plaintiff avers that her marriage was without the knowledge or consent of her parents, and that it was an offense under the statute on the part of the defendant. The bride is now in Europe, being sent thicker by her parents. She, however, makes this application heraelf. Both parties are of highly respectable families, the parents of each having wealth and a good position in society. REMARKABLE SURGICAL OPERATION .-- A. REMARKABLE SUBGICAL OPERATION.—A most remarkable operation, and cutire recovery afterwards is that of the patient at Philadelphia, who recently underwent ampatation of the hip joint by Prof. Pancoast, in presence of the surgical delegation comprising part of the Japanese Embassy. The operation was only the third successful one ever performed in this country, while the entire number ever performed are very few. The patient was put under the influence of ether, after being placed upon the dissecting table, and its effect has been very intelligibly described by him since recovery. The patient

EFFECT OF SUSLIGHT IN HOUSES.—The following fact has been established by careful observations: That where sunlight penetrates all the rooms of a dwelling the inmates are less liable to sickness than in a house where the apartments less its healthin vigorating influences. Basement rooms are nurseries of indisposition. It is a gross mistake to compel human beings to relide partially under ground. There is a defective condition of air in such rooms, connected with dampness, besides the decomposing paint on the walls, and the escape of noxious gases from pipes and drains. All school-rooms, especially, should be open to the sunlight, yet, as a general rule, they are darkened like parlors.

The Suppay Retificions Rioms is Loyson.— PRODUCT OF THE CURA SUGAR PLANTAvions.—The Cuban Messager says the production of the best cultivated plantations averages twenty-three boxes per negro, or 10,000 pounds; but, in the greater part of those estates where the modern machinery, has not been introduced, only eleven boxes, or 4,750 pounds of sugar can be redkoned per negro. There are above 2,000 sugar estates in the whole island, and the number increases almost daily. In 1276, there were, in all the islands, 475 sugar estates. light, yet, as a general rule, they are darkened like parlors.

THE SUNDAY RELIGIOUS RIOTS IN LONDON.—
It is scarcely credible, yet it is nevertheless true, that the religious riots in St. George's Church, London, continue on every Sunday, without interruption from the authorities or police. As regularly as the services are commenced, the hooting, howling, profamity and wiolence of the mob begin. The Londonjournals, which publish such exemplary essays on mob violence in America, would find it difficult to produce just such a case in the annals of American rowdyism. Yet here is a regular Sunday riot, perpetrated every week, under the eyes of the Government, and yet the Government, whose attention has been often called to it, never raises a finger to interfere.

ADVENTUARE OF A LOSE WIDOW.—A "lone, widow," from Missouri, secently trived at Denver City, in the Kansas gold region, having driven her ox-wagon from the Missouri River. She took her hens along, and, by selling eggs to the emigrants at $1 per dozen, had accumulated considerable money. By speculation in Hungarian grass-seed she had cleared $14, and expected, by the time she reached California, to have her purse well filled, and be able to begin housekeeping with comfort. She was fifty years old, and bright as the youngest of them.
